IntriguingVon Ein KundeI read this biography within three days and although I have not been a huge fan of Marlene. Mr. Bach has evoked my interest and I find myself admiring her for her frankness and of course for her courage to travel with U.S. Army to defeat Hitler. Most divas in her place would have stayed home in Bel Air and enjoy the glamorous lifestyle. According to Mr. Bach she must have been very generous. But does he really have proof that she had all those love affairs or are his statements based on mere rumours and gossip. The other thing that annoys me is his "fan" attitude towards his mentor von Sternberg. Just a bit too much.
