read" for building committees. Von Fred Niffenegger Ray Bowman and Eddy Hall have asked all the right questions here. The answers may surprise you! I wanted a straight forward look at the big question of when to build a church and found a lot of little questions along the way. I had to ask questions like; "Will more people come if we build?", and "Can we afford to build?". Without asserting their religious views excessively or to the point of distraction, the authors were a big help in this regard. The same thought process goes on for people all over the world when they aspire to or are thrust into a leadership position in a building project. Also, there is nothing new here. People have been building churches for an awful long time, you know. Why try to reinvent the wheel? I recommend reading this book to help answer your questions and to know what questions to ask. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Excellent unconventional advice Von Ein Kunde Bowman Hall make a solid case for examining every possible option before deciding to build or expand your facilities. Convincing arguments with good supporting data. Recommended for any church considering investing in facilities. (Companion book, When Not To Finance, is in the works.) 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Sehr gut geschrieben Von Jakob Adolf Hier geht es nicht nur einfach um den Bau oder Nicht Bau einer Kirche, sondern auch um Fakten rund um das Wachstum einer Gemeinde. Sehr empfehlenswert.
